International Leadership Foundation welcomes Summer 2007 fellows to Washington, DC

The International Leadership Foundation (ILF) is proud to announce the Summer 2007 class of fellows who will work in government internships in the Greater Washington region.

Each student awarded a fellowship will spend eight weeks beginning June 11, 2007 working for a government agency in Washington, DC. The ILF is a non-profit organization that promotes the civic involvement, and effectiveness, of Asian Pacific Americans.

Each ILF Fellow receives a $1500 scholarship funded by the ILF and other sponsors. The ILF works with government agencies to place Fellows in their area of interest. Students must pay for their own travel, housing and living expenses during their internships.

Derek Chen, the President of ILF remarked that, "this year's class was especially outstanding. Of course, we have excellent students who apply every year and it becomes increasingly difficult to choose the best among extremely well-qualified students."

This year's students are:
