CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

Dear Friends,

As we reflect on a year like no other, brought on by a global pandemic that has disrupted life across the world, I am grateful that here at the Committee of 100 (C100), our members, staff, families, friends, and supporters have been keeping safe and well. Like almost every American organization, C100 has encountered disruptions to our normal activities, including the cancellation of our 2020 U.S. Annual Conference and our China conference. In making the necessary adjustments to our programs, I am proud of the way our members and staff have been able to adapt and respond to the ongoing needs of our community, and to this great country we call home.

In March, as the pandemic started to reach a critical point in the United States, C100 members came together, under the leadership of our new President Z Huang who had just joined us, to fill an urgent need for medical supplies and protective equipment across the country. As Chinese American leaders with access to much needed resources in both the U.S. and China, we were uniquely positioned to be of critical help to America. Between March and September, thanks to the incredible generosity of our members, donors, and our hardworking staff, C100 members raised more than $4 million to help save lives, providing more than 850,000 masks and almost 60,000 protective gowns to more than 120 organizations across 28 states, many of these in traditionally underserved communities.

As an organization committed to promoting the full inclusion and equality of Chinese Americans in American society, we are committed more than ever to addressing racial injustice. Not only has C100 worked to supply medical and protective gear to populations disproportionately affected by the pandemic, we have called out and denounced the increased anti-Asian sentiments as a result of the pandemic. We believe that diversity is one of America's greatest strengths, and it is important to acknowledge and value the contributions of all the different racial, ethnic, and immigrant groups that have helped build America. That is why C100 is proud to have launched From Foundations to Frontiers, a landmark study and documentation of the contributions of Chinese Americans to American society. In the following pages, you will see the range of activities and programs we continue to be engaged in, including our ongoing efforts to draw attention to the harmful impact on America of the suspicion being visited upon Chinese American scientists and researchers.

Our programs and continued bridge-building between peoples and cultures rely on donors, partners, and supporters who share our commitment to our dual missions. C100's uniqueness has always lain in the inseparability of our dual missions and our members' ability to understand the impact of each on the other. And that is why along with fighting for Chinese American inclusion and equality, C100 will continue to work for constructive engagement, dialogue, and cooperation between the U.S and China in the months and years ahead. Despite the pressure for countries to isolate themselves right now, the U.S. and China have become too interdependent and connected to withdraw from each other.

My deepest thanks go to our members, staff, partners, and supporters for your generosity and commitment in helping us fulfill our dual missions. This year has required all of us to dig deep, drawing on our resilience, ingenuity, creativity, and care for one another. As we step forward into a new year, let us focus on positive contributions and constructive activities as we continue to engage in the challenging but necessary work of bringing together different viewpoints and finding common ground towards a future that is inclusive and beneficial for all. We invite you to join us.

Sincerely,

H. ROGER WANG
Chairman

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Dear Committee of 100 Members and the Chinese American Community at Large,

I am pleased to share with you our Annual Report for 2020. I began my tenure as President of Committee of 100 one year ago and 2020 has been a year of heartbreak and tragedy, but also of innovation and adaptation. 2020 was proof that as an organization, our dual missions are critical to our community and nation, and despite the challenges, much can be and remains to be done.

As we remember our work of the past year, we must also look towards the future. In that spirit, I have included an outline of our priorities to ensure that we continue the good work of the Committee at this pivotal moment. We will build on the work of last year to strengthen the five priorities below.

Finances: The bulk of Committee of 100's revenue has traditionally come from conferences, which we have had to transition to virtual events due to the pandemic. The changing times require us to diversify our fundraising. In addition to Membership Dues and Member Donations we aim to create additional sources through corporate sponsorships and foundation grants.

Member Engagement: Throughout 2020, we called out to our Members for involvement and more than 100 of our 132 Members responded by engaging in one or more activities and task force assignments. Our goal for 2021 is to increase the participation rate through a host of activities. In 2020, we held more than 45 events overall, shifting to a virtual model quickly due to the pandemic. The Committee is only as strong as the involvement of our Members. We will continue to strategically grow and diversify our Membership to reflect the best of our community and our nation.

Chinese American Inclusion: We plan to grow and expand relationships within our community and with other minority organizations that share similar challenges and goals. Through our Members, in 2020 we raised and donated PPE to more than 120 hospitals across the U.S., PPE that was delivered to Asian American, African American and Latino communities. Our "From Foundations to Frontiers" report enables us to join in a common discourse on the making of the American dream. Our goal is to connect with more than 200 organizations by year's end to talk about the report and elevate awareness and appreciation for the 175 years of contributions by Chinese Americans to the United States.

U.S. - China Relations: Our Board and Members developed and approved Six Key Messages upon which Committee of 100 will speak with one voice. We aim to deepen and expand our relationship with Greater China region. Building around these five priorities, we see three opportunities for Committee of 100 to play a unique role in 2021 and beyond.

- 1) As Chinese Americans, we are in the unique position of understanding the cultures and challenges of America and China. We must play an active role in the re-imagining of the US-China relationship.
- 2) For Chinese Americans to continue to contribute to America, we must help create a balance between national security, civil liberty, and America's ability to attract and retain the world's best talent.
- 3) Chinese Americans are growing in population, yet we need to do more to ensure that our community has a seat at the table on issues of inclusion and diversity.

To support these priorities and programming, we need to build a best-in-class team. We are on our way to creating institutional capacity that will benefit the Committee for years to come. My sincere hope is that the following Annual Report will serve as a remainder of the innovation, unity, and growth opportunities that have always defined the Committee of 100. Thank you for your support and interest in the Committee. And sincere thanks to our Members - we could not do any of this without you.

Respectfully,
ZHENG HUANG
 President

C100 SCHOLARS PROGRAM

Established in 2005, and formerly known as the Leadership Scholarship Program, the C100 Scholars Program (CSP) aims to foster the leadership potential of young Chinese scholars and encourage better understanding and exchanges between the two countries. The CSP expanded to include both Chinese students and American students who study in China and partners with 23 leading Chinese and American academic institutions – such as Peking University, Tsinghua University, Fudan University, Jiaotong University, New York University Shanghai, and Duke Kunshan University.

In 2019, the C100 Scholars Program Executive Committee awarded its largest cohort ever of 56 students who have demonstrated outstanding leadership in the fields of social services, innovation & entrepreneurship, and US-China relations. Ambassador Wenzhong Zhou delighted scholars and attendees alike in giving impromptu remarks and presenting awards to the scholars. The Ambassador's remarks crystallized the impact of the Greater China Conference 2019: "I am deeply encouraged by the efforts of the Committee of 100 and heartened by the very meaningful C100 Scholars Program, seeing the future of the U.S.-China relationship in the hands of youngsters like these."

Dr. Carter Tseng, Founder and CEO of the Little Dragon Foundation and Co-Chair of CSP Executive Committee, said, "We are excited to welcome this year's cohort of students. These students are at the forefront of their generation. Against the backdrop of a rapidly changing global landscape, we hope that these leaders of tomorrow will play a key role in helping bridge better understanding and exchanges between the U.S. and China in the future."

IN MEMORIAM

SHIRLEY YOUNG

The Committee of 100 is greatly saddened by the passing of Committee of 100 member, Governor and First Chair Shirley Young. Her larger than life contributions leave behind a legacy of dedication to the arts, culture, and community.

“Shirley cared deeply for the mission and future of C100. It was her wish that all members will come together, as accomplished citizens of this country, to enhance the role of all Chinese Americans.”
